School officials may nix class building project

By BRENT MACEY

A classroom building project planned by the Hancock County School Board may be abandoned due to lack of funds. classrooms throughout the school

However, now it appears that only a few classrooms will be built, if any are built at all.

The original plan to build 16 classrooms was reduced last year when school officials learned they could not obtain $225,000 expected from the Mississippi Educational Finance

Loss of those funds forced board members to consider building only 10 classrooms.

Those plans were altered again recently when the Mississippi Attorney District that the Mississippi Attorney about pay some $150,000 to the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District.

The payment was for money generated from 16th section land located in Shoreline Park.

Apparently Bay St. Louis School officials were unaware that they were entitled to the money until recently.

When they filed for the money, they PROJECT-Page 10A

Supervisors view redistricting plan

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors Tuesday reviewed a proposed plan to redistrict the county according to 1960 census figures. Bill Reed, a transportation planner

Reed has been working with the

"When any beat deviates plus or minus seven percent from an average. then new district lines have to be be drawn," he stated.

Currently Beat Five has grown some 20.5 percent above the average population figure set for each beat. All the supervisors appeared to have

The final push for the American Heart Association to reach its goal for Hancock County will be Saturday night with a benefit dance, according to Anita Lamb, county chairman.

Music will be provided by Pat Murphy and The County Line Band from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Kiln VFW Home.

We hope many of you will attend this dance and support the Heart Fund.

Hancock County hasn't made its goal in several years. If you would like to make a contribution, send it to Mrs. Lamb at the Diamondhead branch of Hancock Bank.

We have been attending the Bay Rotary Club meetings for many years, and last week our guest speaker sure had everyone's attention.

Dr. Sidney Chevis, MD, of Bay St. Louis spoke on hypertension (high blood pressure), and he told us all some very important things we should know about high blood pressure.

We have known Dr. Chevis for a long-time and really want to commend him on his superior presentation.

The Wave Pool at Buccaneer State Park continues to be very popular with local residents as well as visitors.

Everyone using the facility seems to like the fun and cannot wait for another return to splash in the waves.

The pool is open every day and is one of only a few in the nation.

It is good to see the repairs begin on the Beach Road so traveling to the Wave Pool will be easier.

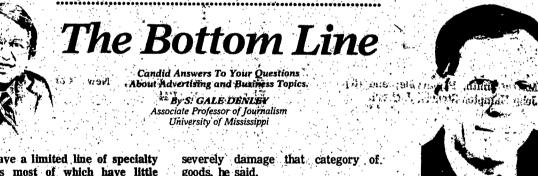

It was nice to see many of our longtime friends last Saturday during the rededication ceremonies of Waveland's Fire Station No. 2 on Gulfside Drive as Central Station in memory of late Fire Chief Kenneth (Kenny) Fayard Sr.

Having lived in Kenny's neighborhood for many years, we know just about everyone of his relatives as well as his wife Marilyn's.

As we mentioned before, Kenny will long be remembered by the residents of Waveland.

EXPENSIVE MISCHIEF—Waveland workmen attempt to remove toller paper from oak trees 'rolled' Friday night by persons with apparent low mentality. Cleanups like this and picking up debris thrown alongside our roadways cost taxpayers much money each year. We hope persons witnessing such events will call the police so they may apprehend the guilty parties. There is a lot of paper and cans alongside our streets which could use some 'volunteers' collecting.

We have a limited line of specialty products most of which have little competition. However, we are considering a new product in a highly competitive line-our edge will be lower price. Will This Be Enough?

Dear WTBE: In this case maybe so, but generally price alone isn't sufficient; especially in the long run.

An executive of Coca-Cola discussing beverage marketing recently told a New York symposium that strong brand identity is the greatest factor in success.

He said brand building expands the over-all market in a particular category in addition to increasing consumption of the advertised beverage.

On price emphasis, he said, "Carried to the extreme, this virtually eliminates all of our marketing weapons, except price-leading only to eroded margins and profits." Making price the only reason to move from one brand to another would goods, he said. He used coffee in an example of how a brand could be destroyed. Bringing out a decaffeinated caffee, and making caffeine the arch-villain in the regular brand, would be poor strategy he said. Instead, unique product features have to be promoted to "mold them into a distinctive image for the product that gives the consumer some definite reasons to buy that particular brand."

In marketingia new line of California wines the Coke executive said his company doesn't "want to take a case of wine away from anyone." Rather, he said he would prefer that overall consumption facrease.

Back to your question. Price is a factor, but alone, it may not be enough to get you the kind of business you want. Send questions or comments to S. Gale Denley, Associate Professor, Department of Journalism, University, Miss. 38677.

Removal of litter from public areas—parks, sidewalks, streets, highways, public buildings and grounds-costs in excess of $1 billion each year in the United States. The cost. of course, is paid by the taxpayer. Each individual can help in a small way to reduce this cost. Don't throw trash on the streets and highways or other public areas. Use litter bags.

Still another program develops standards and guidelines for juvenile justice and delinquency prevention

Also covered by the grant are programs for rehabilitating serious and violent offenders and restitution which enables youthful offenders to pay for damages to their victims, Terry, program coordinator in the Governor's Office of Criminal Justice Planning, "is to reach young people before they become hardened criminals. We work to prevent young people from committing any crimes and to get them back on the right track after they have committed crimes.

In addition, there are business services such as banking, insurance, accounting, advertising, and legal services. And, there are distributive services like transportation, com-munication and wholesale and retail trade. Services also include medical care and education.

The contribution of the services category to the economy has been a growing factor. I saw a chart recently which showed the shift in civilian employment among agriculture, industry and services from 1870 to 1960.

In 1870, agriculture was responsible for nearly half of all employment; by 1980, its share had dwindled to 3 percent. During the same period, services grew from 26 percent of total employment to 61 percent.

Another segment of the service sector that often escapes notice involves international commerce. Significant services in international trade include travel and tourism, financial services, and transportation of persons and goods.

The category of services does overlap at times with the category of goods, and that has made it difficult to trace its true economic impact. For example, the automobile manufacturing industry hires salesmen, designers, advertising and accounting personnel. Restaurants supply food as well as service.

But the market in services is growing. The technological revolution in electronics and computers has given rise to wealth of business services that did not even exist a few decades ago. While opinions differ as to the desirability of a shift to services over the years, there is no question that the demand will continue to rise. And, it will prompt a new round of consideration of some policies.

It may be that government will have to recognize the magnitude and diversity of the service sector, a less American economy,

> CHANGES DUE IN IMMIGRATION LAWS

Few changes have been made over the past 30 years in America's policy toward immigration. Our country now overques but have higher pout liegislation approved by House, and tathe Senate subcommittees is fained, at curbing the flow of illegal immigrants into the U.S. It is the first major overhaul of this nation's immigration laws since 1952, and there is considerable sentiment for passage.

The legislation as it is now drafted carries three important provisions:

1) Establishment of a system to identify aliens who are eligible to work in the United States. 2) Sanctions on employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens, and; 3) Revisions in the existing temporary worker program.

American authorities have been at a loss for many years on how to strictly enforce provisions of existing immigration laws because of the lack of any reliable means of identification.

They have found that documentation can be easily forged or otherwise altered to hide an individual's real

. A number of changes has also been proposed for the so-called "H-2" program, named for the section of the 1952 immigration law that allows foreign workers into the U.S. on a temporary basis.

Over the last decade, about 18,300 workers per year have been certified, with the bulk going to Florida for harvesting of sugar cane or the northeastern part of the country for harvesting of apples.

The major change in the pending legislation shifts H-2 enforcement from the Labor Department to the attorney general in the Justice Department. There would still have to be certification that the employer seeking the foreign labor actually needs workers and could not find them in the U.S.

Employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens on a consistent basis might also be diable for criminal penalties under terms of the bills. One complaint with this provision has been that employers could actually have the assignment of enforcing the nation's immigration laws The bills working their way through from the package proposed by the President in October, 1981, It remains to be seen if all the differences can be worked out, although one thing is clear:

The economic burden on the American people caused by illegal aliens is too heavy to ignore any longer.

Common Cause-Mississippi has released tabulations on six House and seven Senate votes that were taken during the 1962 Mississippi Legislative

According to Ken Autrey, spokesman for the citizens' lobbying organization, these votes are an indication of legislators' willingness or unwillingness to improve government performance and make the actions of public officials more open and accountable to the voters.

The tabulation includes votes on passage of a statewide public records bill, re-enactment of the 1979 Ethics Law, strengthening amendments to the 1977 Lobbyist Disclosure Statute, utility reform legislation, and creation of a Department of Administration for state

The Legislature passed legislation which continued and improved the 1979. Ethics Law, which created the Mississippi Ethics Commission and established financial disclosure requirements for public officials.

But Common Cause's other major priority, passage of a public records bill, failed to gain approval when the Senate and House couldn't agree on the exact wording for the measure in the closing hours of the Session.

According to Autrey, "We believe, after three years of trying, that the basis for an effective public records bill was arrived at last Session. Common Cause will be working with the House and Senate sponsors of this issue over the next few months to work out acceptable language to all sides."

Out of the votes, Common Cause picked two in the Seante and two in the House and labeled them as "litmus test" votes. The group claims that these votes give the best indication of where a senator or representative stood on the public records and ethics issues.

In the House, votes on an amendment to the public records legislation (No. 1 on the chart) and final passage of the ethics measure (No. 4) were listed as litmus tests. Those given in the Senate included an amendment to the public records bill (No. 4 on the chart) and final passage of the ethics legislation

Common Cause singled out and commended Lt. Governor Brad Dye and eight legislators for their efforts during the Session.

They are: Rep. Tommy Cambell, Yazoo City; Rep. Eric Clark, Taylorsville; Sen. Robert Crook, Ruleville; Rep. Dennis Dollar, Gulfport; Sen. Rick Lambert, Hattiesburg' Sen. George Smith, Long Beach; Sen. Martin Smith, Poplarville; and Rep.

John Hampton Stennis, Jackson.
According to Autrey, "at different times during the Session, these gentlemen stood out in the fight to gain passage of strong legislation to improvegovernment and make it more open and

Vote on final passage of HB 655, legislation to continue and strengthen Mississippi's 1979 Ethics Law, which created the Miss. Ethics Commission and established personal financial disclosure requirements for certain public officials. The vote in the Senate ended in a tie, 23-23, but the measure was approved when the Lt. Governor broke the tie in lavor of passage (CC position · YES).

Ethics - 2

Vote on a parliamentary motion by Sen. Martin Smith (Poplarville) that was designed to kill another parliamentary motion, this one by Sen Emerson Stringer (Columbia). Stringer's motion was an attempt to reconsider vote #1 above and thus try to kill the ethics legislation. Smith's motion prevailed 25.24 (CC position - YES).

Ethics - 3

Vote on final passage of SB 2964, legislation to appropriate $262,000 to fund the operations of the Miss. Ethics Commission for the upcoming fiscal year. The measure was approved 27-19 (CC position YES).

Public Records - 4

Vote on an amendment by Sen. Emerson Stringer (Columbia) to the public records bill, that would have required agencies to charge fees for copies of records. Common Cause supported the provision in this hill as reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee that gives agencies discretion in de ciding whether or not to charge fees. This attempt by Stringer to weaken the bill was defeated 22.26 (CC position · NO).

Vote on an amendment by Sen. Robert Crook (Ruleville) to legi extending interest rate limitations in Mississippi. Crook's american would have required utilities to pay an interest rate of 5 percentage points above the federal reserve discount rate on refunds of excess utility charges. The present law requires utilities to pay 8% interest, and the legislation Crook was attempting to amend required utilities to pay interest ar 2 points above the federal discount rate. Crook proposed his amendment because banks are allowed to charge interest up to 5 points above the discount rate. His amendment was defeated 14-29 (CC position - YES).

Government Reform - 7

Vote on final passage of SB:2236, legislation that would have greated a Department of Administration in state government to centralize and streamline such activities as personnel management, purchasing, data processing, accounting, budgeting, and construction oversight. The bill also proposed to remove legislators from most of the executive branch boards and commissions they are now members of. The measure passed 29 15 (CC position YES), but was killed in the House when the chairman of the House committee refused to consider the bill.

It also occurs on fruit that is one-third to half grown on the blossom end of the fruit. At the end is a small dark spot which develops into large spots that soon turn black if not controlled.

Blossom-end rot is caused by a lack of calcium in the rapidly growing tomato. The uptake of calcium can be interrupted by excessive soil olsture or by excessive drought periods.

While the plant is in the rapidly growing stage this is the most likely time that blossom-end rot will occur. You can prevent it by maintaining the soil pH around 6.5, uniform soil moisture by irrigating and mulching and avoid heavy application of nitrogen.

"Grain inspections are particularly important during these months," Gennin said. Storage bins must be cleaned and sprayed thoroughly from top to bottom, inside and out. Old grain, trash and weeds must be removed from around the bin and kept from growing or accumulating during storage.

When there's evidence of insects, farmers are required to treat the grain with a fumigant.

The dairy industry faces one of the most critical times ever within the next one or two

The expansion of milk production that began in mid 1979 has continued to increase. For the last three years, the industry has produced record levels of milk. The increased production has resulted in a supply of milk in excess of demand. This year may well be another record year of milk production. In 1960, Mississippi milk production increased for the first time since 1965, climbing over the previous year to $17, million pounds. In 1961 the state's milk production increased to 845 million pounds. For the first half of 1982, production is 3 percent above year earlier levels.

There are several factors contributing to the increased production. Since early spring of last year the dairy producer has been faced with a favorable milk-feed ratio. In response to the large grain production, feed prices have been most favorable.

Favorable feed prices, coupled with low slaughter cow prices, have encouraged additional feeding and has discouraged intensive culling of dairy cows,

This resulted in an increase in the number of milk cows and an increase in milk production per cow. Since the cost of feed represents about half of the total cost of producing milk, many dairy producers expanded milk production in an effort to increase total revenue: The number of heifer replacements per 100 milking cows is also at a record level. The ratio is about 40 to 100. As a result, the number of milking cows is growing. Another factor is the favorable income from dairying compared to other agricultural enterprises. Then, too, there have been no incentives from off-farm employment opportunities. In 1961, there was a record $120 billion income to the dairy industry.

Since October of 1980 the average manufacturing milk price has been below the support price. The average facturing milk price in the Minnesota-Wisconsin area

McIlwain said the maps are the product of a cooperative effort known as the Southeast Area Monitoring and Assessment Program (SEAMAP) which eventually will involve many people from all of the five Gulf states and the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS).

The maps contain data on fisheries resources, including species, abundance, and geographical location. They were mailed by the Gulf States Marine Fisheries Commission

The maps were prepared by computers at the NMFS Laboratory located at NSTL in Hancock County, using datareceived via satellite from both the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's R-V TOMMY MUNRO and the NMFS' R-V OREGON II.

Mississippi Brownbuilder Henry Hancock: One of the Best

Henry Hancock, from Biloxi, is helping build the economic growth and progress of his state as part of Brown & Root's worldwide engineering and construction team.

Henry joined Brown & Root in 1977 as a pipefitter and is now a planner. He and his wife, Peggy, live in Vancleave with their three children. The family attends Vancleave First Baptist Church where Henry is Christian growth hour director. A former member of the Mississippi National Guard, he enjoys searching for and collecting Indian and Civil War artifacts.

Another thing about Henry: he's one of the best. He's helping Brown & Root do a better job, because he knows his job and gets it done right. Wherever Brown & Root works, we always look for people like Henry. We give preference in hiring to people in jobsite communities and offer them opportunition to advance as fast and as far as their abilities and merit take them. That way, we share the benefits of every job with local people and share the economic benefits of payrolls, purchases, savings and taxes with local communities and states.

Brownbuilder Henry Hancock helps us all by being one of the best.

VA Questions

town and have been turned down, I thought the Veterans Administration guaranteed every veteran a loan.

A. The guaranteed home loan is a guaranty by the VA to the lender that if you default on your loan the VA will pay the lender 60 percent of the loan, not to exceed $27,500. The veteran, however, must be a good credit risk and be reasonably able to repay the

Q. I have been receiving VA widow's pension since my husband died two years ago. I have recently become eligible for Social Security. Will that affect my widow's pension?

A. Yes. The amount of your widow's pension is determined by all your other income, including Social Security. You should report any change in income to the VA immediately to avoid an overpayment. It is advisable to furnish the VA a copy of the letter awarding you Social Security so your benefits can be adjusted properly.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP

QUESTION: I have been able to accumulate some money through regular savings and have thought about investing it in rental property. What advice can you offer me? T.M. Pascagoula

ANSWER: Dear T.M. Investing in rental property requires explicit consideration of risk, effects of financing, tax consequences and other investment motivations. Ask yourself these questions before you move ahead:

-How much money do I have to invest? Even though you may be able to finance a large portion of the purchase price, investments in real estate still require down payment. In addition, closing costs also have to be paid. Contrary to what some people say, rental property is not for people with little or no cash.

-Will I hold the property for a short period of time and hope to make a fast profit, or will I hold it as a long-term investment? If you plan on a quick resale, rental property might not be best for you. As you probably know, with today's high interest rates many owners of property are finding it very difficult to sell their property without taking a loss. Those days of "guaranteed" appreciation regardless of the type real estate you buy are probably gone forever, if in fact they ever did exist. -What do I primarily want from the investment: cash flow each year to supplement my other income, appreciation in value to build an estate for retirement years, or a tax shelter for reduced income taxes on current income? While it would be nice to find rental property that offers all of these, such is not the case. Different property offers different advantages and you certainly need to and you certainly need to 4. THE AUTHORIZED decide what you want from the CAPITALIZATION OF THE investment before buying a particular property. To do otherwise is to place the cart before the horse.

-What type of financing arrangements would I prefer: a small down payment and higher monthly payments, or vice versa. If you want the small down payment, then will the rental from the property be enough to make the morother income?

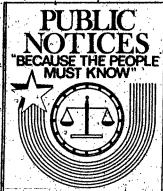

-And finally, do I have the necessary to successfully own and manage rental property? Unlike a savings account, rental property has to be managed and as any owner will tell you, a great deal of time is required. You should answer all of these questions to your satisfaction before you buy rental property. For answers to questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh. P. O. Box 295, University, Miss.

Q. I have applied for a GI veteran and am now 65 years home loan at every bank in of age. Do I automatically qualify for a VA pension?

A, No. You meet the age and wartime service requirements. However, you must also meet the income and net worth requirements.

groups traveled to the Gulf Mississippi, in six trips, Coast to get a first-hand look brought 57 students, Five at marine life and marine research. Seventeen of the groups were from Mississippi, representing seven different schools. The remaining sixteen groups came from out-ofstate campuses. Laboratory is a teaching affiliate of all of those colleges and universities.

The highlight of a stay at the Laboratory for most students is a collecting cruise on the trawler Hermes to one of Mississippi's barrier islands.

Animals that are collected alive are taken back to the lab, placed in aquaria and observed; the others are examined under microscopes. The students are taught to use descriptions of Gulf animals to identify almost all of the species collected.

Some field trip students use skiffs to collect estuarine animals and plants in the marshes surrounding the lab. or visit seafood plants and pet food operations located in nearby Biloxi Pascagoula.

Students also have access to GCRL's Gunter Marine Library for classwork research and personal interest projects.

In addition to collecting and identifying animals and plants, many groups tour the Lab's research facilities.

Staff members from different science disciplines explain their part of the marine research being carried out on the Mississippi Sound and the Gulf of Mexico.

This year ten of the visiting groups were given tours of the laboratory, and many students also spent some time at the Lab's Marine Education Center in Biloxi.

While they are at the lab, the students and professors cook their own meals in the dining hall. They often prepare the traditional southern gumbo or boiled shrimp, and some notso-well-known seafoods like

This is the first fresh seafood for some students from inland areas such as Iowa, Ohio and Indiana.

The time field trip groups stay at the lab varies from one or two days up to three weeks; the latter period allows an instructor time to teach a specific course. Most of the students this year studied biology; others concentrated on geology, physical science, and zoology.

The largest group consisted of 25 students from Louisiana State University.

ETV Brief

Anna Sten is "Nana," the heroine of Emile Zola's celebrated novel of the same name, on Mississippi ETV's "Saturday Night Movie Classics" at 9 p.m., Saturday, June 19, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Nana becomes the toast of Paris when an admirer builds a spectacular revue around her, bringing more swains to her, including the old Grand Duke Alexis and his handsome young lieutenant with whom she finds her first real romance. But her lover's older brother, also taken by her beauty, intervenes.

Co-starring are Mae Clarke, Phillips Holmes, Lionel Atwill and Richard Bennett.
